What we do:

We provide specialist dental services

Our team specialises in recruitment, valuations, growth advice and practice sales for dental professionals.

Today the dental industry is dealing with single practices through to large corporate groups, who are changing the dynamics. There are some strong boutique practices that are still flourishing, especially those with a clear point of difference.

And then there are some rural clinics which are actually still turning patients away. Tony and the team have built relationships with practices all over New Zealand over the past decade - the big and the small - from Coopers Beach to Invercargill.

We're proud of our range of specialist recruitment, practice sales and business advice services tailored to the dental sector and our ability to help dental professionals and practice owners.

We look forward to supporting your success.
